

CITY RETURNS CADY TO MAYOR'S OFFICE

CITIZENS REFUSE TO APPROVE TWO SPECIAL ISSUES

Three-Mill Question Given 1,892-757 Advantage In Tuesday's Election

BERGER BUILDING DENIED

C. Of C. Pleased With Vote Given To City Manager Plan In First Try

Circleville voters, Tuesday, proved their loyalty to the city's school system by voting favorably on the continuation of the three-mill levy for general operating expenses, but refused to sponsor an addition to Berger Hospital and expressed their opposition to a change in the form of government now in operation in the city by turning down a move that would have inaugurated the city manager system.

School officials were elated by the vote of 1,892 to 757 received by the three-mill issue. The measure, they pointed out in their campaign, does not add to the city's taxation burden but is merely a continuation of a levy that has been effective for the last 25 years. Each of the city's 11 precincts voted in favor of the levy.

The move to the city manager system was a bitter one especially since the physicians declared that more room is an imperative need at the municipal institution. For the second time a bond issue for the hospital has failed because of the 65 percent margin that is required for such issues. A year ago a $10,000 appeal was refused although the majority of folk voting on the measure favored it. The same thing happened Tuesday when 1,428 persons voted for the $20,000 issue and 1,088 chalked their ballots against it. Election board officials said that considering the number of votes cast the issue required 1,645 for passage.

Whether the question will be brought up again soon is not certain, physicians said, but if it is voted on again it is likely that the measure will be offered at a time when no other controversial issues are at stake. A year ago two other issues were being voted on, one for boulevard lights and another for a bond issue for a city hall addition. All three were beaten. This year the hospital question accompanied two others to the polls, and only one, the school question, survived.

Chamber of Commerce officials were pleased Wednesday with the outcome of the charter government issue although it was beaten by 527 votes. It garnered 937 supporters against 1,464 who voted against it. The C. of C. declared that since few persons were acquainted with the question that they believed it would receive added support if and when offered again.

City Manager Sought

The question was whether a commission should be named to draft a charter. Had the vote been favorable 15 men chosen by the Chamber of Commerce and whose names appeared on the ballot would have drafted a charter and offered it to the city at a special election. The move would have led to a city manager.

Votes cast for each man nominated for the charter commission appear elsewhere in Wednesday's Daily Herald.

Positions On City School Board Won By Eagleson, Barnhart and Rowland

JOHN O. Eagleson, former Circleville school superintendent, returns to the work of education next January 1 by virtue of the large vote given him in Tuesday's board of education ballot. He topped the ticket of five men seeking three positions.

GRIFFITH LAUDS OHIO BOARDS ON EXCELLENT WORK

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—Secretary of State Earl Griffith today expressed satisfaction with the way local election boards throughout the state cooperated in speeding up tabulation of balloting on the Bigelow pension amendment and three other state issues.

"It was the fastest election count in the history of Ohio," Griffith said. "This was made possible by the 60,000 persons who worked in election offices throughout the state."

Before midnight last night, Griffith's office had tabulated results from 6,012 of the state's 8,589 precincts. As early as 9 p. m., tabulated results from 1,425 precincts indicated that the Bigelow pension and its companion proposal, as well as the other two statewide questions, would be voted down.

NO PEACE NEAR DESPITE APPEAL OF TWO POWERS

By International News Service

Not peace but continued war appeared today to be the fate in store for Europe despite the telegrams sent to Great Britain, France and Germany by Queen Wilhelmina of Holland and King Leopold of the Belgians, pleading for peace and offering their good offices in mediation.

Far from leaping at the Belgian-Dutch move as an opportunity to end the conflict, London, Paris and Berlin regarded the message from the two neutral rulers with sympathy and pessimism.

Paris frankly regarded it as a result of "more German blackmail," and openly charged that Belgium and Holland had been forced to deliver the peace bid under threat of violation of their neutrality.

London expressed the view that the latest end-of-the-war move has already failed.

Story Buried

Berlin—with Hitler in Munich—regarded the move with cool favor and published news about it on the second pages of its newspapers, reserving the first pages for stinging comments.

Ex-Educator At Head Of Ticket; Phillips Runs Fourth

A former school superintendent, an incumbent member of the board and a milling company executive were placed on Circleville's new board of education, Tuesday, in an interesting contest that saw the defeat of Dr. G. D. Phillips, member of the board who was running for reelection.

J. O. Eagleson, North Pickaway Street, who served the Circleville schools as high school principal from 1918 to 1920 and as superintendent from 1920 until 1933, led the board of education non-partisan ticket by gathering a grand total of 2,122 votes. Behind him came Clarence R. Barnhart, present clerk of the board, who gained 1,589 votes, only 19 more than Ray E. Rowland, Ralston-Purina Co. general manager, received in his first effort to gain a public office in Circleville.

Dr. Phillips ran neck and neck with Barnhart and Rowland for a while, but gradually fell behind to receive 1,375. For several hours, during the early balloting, it was Rowland, Phillips and Barnhart, then Phillips, Barnhart and Rowland, then Barnhart, Rowland and Phillips, but down the home stretch when each precinct reporting meant just one less to be counted, Barnhart and Rowland pulled away. Mr. Eagleson's election became a certainty after the first two precincts were received from different parts of the city expressing the trend.

All Precincts Topped

A sample of Mr. Eagleson's strength is shown in the fact that he topped the other candidates in each of the city's precincts.

Donald H. Watt, fifth candidate, totalled 941 votes.

The new school board will be reorganized in January, a new chairman to be chosen to replace Charles H. May, who is retiring from the board after many years of service. Holdover members are Lawrence Goeller and Mrs. Lillian B. Moore, whose terms do not expire for two years.

All five of the candidates reside in the same ward, four of them in the same precinct, First Ward A. Mr. Eagleson led there with 278 votes to 244 for Barnhart, 220 for Rowland, 195 for Phillips and 96 for Watt. Rowland is the only one of the five who does not live in Precinct A of the First Ward.

Board of education members serve without salary although the clerk, who may be a member of the board or may be a private individual, receives $600 annually. Mr. Barnhart has served as clerk for the last several years. Board members revealed Wednesday that the school business of the city is even larger than the municipality's business during a year's time, more than $100,000 being handled in the schools and less than $75,000 in the city's funds.

GREEN TO TAKE GESSAMAN'S JOB IN CAPITAL CITY

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—Floyd F. Green, 43-year-old former city councilman, today was the winner in his race with incumbent Myron B. Gessaman for mayor of Ohio's capital city.

Election At Glance

Cady defeats Hedges by 385 for mayor; Himrod wins reelection as treasurer by 1109 over Gard; Eagleson, Barnhart and Rowland named to city board of education; Berger Hospital bond issue and charter plan defeated; three-mill school levy approved; Manson chosen as trustee, Lane as township clerk; county votes against Bigelow issues almost 6 to 1 and opposes state board of education and referendum on civil service act; Young and Dick renamed to county board of education; Trio of special issues in county school districts approved; Fred Hines elected mayor of Ashville; other villages choose officials.

DICK AND YOUNG WIN POSITIONS

County Board Contest Ends With Present Members Being Elected

C. E. Dick, Monroe Township, and B. W. Young, Pickaway Township, were reelected Tuesday to the Pickaway County Board of Education.

Four candidates filed petitions with the board of elections for the two available positions. They were Messrs. Dick, Young, J. L. Reichelderfer of Salt Creek Township and George LeMay of Deer Creek Township.

The transfer of Muhlenberg Rural School District to Monroe Rural School District by the county board resulted in two candidates making a write-in campaign. They were Charles Niles, Jackson Township, and N. I. Mowery, Muhlenberg Township.

An unofficial tabulation on the board of education, completed at noon Wednesday, showed the following votes: Dick, 2,403; Young, 2,333; LeMay, 1,804; Reichelderfer, 1,386; Niles 325 and Mowery 295.

BRIDE APPEALS TO GOVERNOR TO SAVE HUSBAND

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—In an effort to save her husband from being extradited to Florida to serve out a prison term, a pretty 24-year-old bride today was to make a personal appeal to Gov. John W. Bricker.

She was Mary Louisa Pope who on October 23 left her musical studies at Baldwin-Wallace College to elope with Doyle Hill Pope. Police said Pope escaped from the Florida prison farm at Tallahassee in 1931. He was serving a second degree murder sentence.

Pope holds a $200 a month job with a Toledo oil company. He was identified as an escaped convict after police, during a recent labor dispute, obtained his fingerprints.

The governor has received scores of letters asking that Pope not be extradited.

STATE BALLOTS 3 TO 1 AGAINST PENSION SCHEME

Cincinnati Preacher Says Misrepresentation Back Of Issues' Defeat

FINAL VOTES CHECKED

Emergency Group Gleeful After Halting $50-60 Plan Of Backer

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—Like a prizefighter recovering from a knockout punch, the Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow served notice today that he will attempt to stage a comeback for his badly beaten "$50 at 60" pension plan in 1940.

The Cincinnati minister-politician, whose attempt to guarantee every Ohioan over 60 a $50 a month income and every married couple of that age $80 monthly, was defeated by a margin of about 3 to 1, contended the knockout was a technical one.

It was due, as Bigelow put it, to misrepresentation of the effect his proposal would have on Ohio's tax structure, although his opponents described the voters' lethal punch as a "tribute to the good judgment of the voters of this state."

Actually the pension plan was dealt a staggering blow in the first round, from which it never recovered. First returns showed it trailing by about 3 to 1 and the margin of defeat never diminished as more complete reports came in. With only 199 of the state's 8,589 precincts missing, the vote on the Bigelow pension plan stood: For the plan, 437,833; against, 1,460,272.

Others Beaten Also

On the same ballot and carried down to defeat with the pension amendment were three other issues, one by Bigelow to liberalize the initiative and referendum system, a proposal to create a state board of education with power to name the education director, and the Bricker administration's new civil service act.

Each of the four measures suffered crushing blows, though the two Bigelow amendments made a much less creditable showing than the other two.

With 199 precincts still unreported, the vote on the other three state issues stood:

For the initiative amendment, 383,498; against 1,404,126.

For the state educational amendment, 705,488; against 1,064,735.

For the Civil Service bill, 605,168; against 1,069,105.

To Start Anew

Bigelow conceded defeat of both his proposals when the count was half complete. At his home in Cincinnati last night he said:

'ELECTION DAY' DISORDER SENDS MAN TO HOSPITAL

LEBANON, Nov. 8.—Two men were held for investigation today as a result of the shooting of Fred Henry, 45, of South Lebanon, in what officials described as an "election day disorder." Henry was reported in serious condition in a hospital with a bullet wound in the abdomen.

The men who were questioned by authorities were Steve Kibby, 33, and Thomas Kinney, 59, both of South Lebanon.

According to Deputy Sheriff Gerald Couden, Henry apparently was shot accidentally when Kinney, a tavern keeper, fired at Kibby, who reportedly had struck Kinney. The officer said the argument resulted from the purchase of a keg of beer by politicians to celebrate election day.

THE Rev. Herbert Bigelow, author of the two swamped Bigelow amendments, looked forward Wednesday to another fight for his "dream." He said the issues will be on the ballot next fall. Bigelow, a former Cincinnati congressman, is shown above.

SPECIAL ISSUES GAIN APPROVAL IN COUNTY AREA

Three special issues in Pickaway County rural districts, all for schools, carried in Tuesday's election.

Voters in the New Holland and Williamsport School Districts approved three mill levies for school operating expenses. The vote in New Holland district was 281 for the levy and 103 against. In Williamsport the vote was 378 for the levy and 166 against. Election officials explained that these totals would be changed by votes from overlapping districts, but the changes would not be sufficient to alter the result of the issues.

A bond issue for $3,800 for heating plant improvements in the school in Williamsport was given more than a 65 percent majority. The total vote for the village and township on the issue was 378 for and 152 against. These figures will be changed slightly by small returns from overlapping districts.

JAPANESE GUNS FORCE BRITISH PLANE TO LAND

HONG KONG, Nov. 8.—Anti-aircraft fire from a warship on the shore of Japanese-occupied Wai-chow island today forced down the British Imperial Airways flying boat Dardanu, en route to Hanoi, French Indo-China.

Democrat Wins Over G. O. P. Foe By 385 Margin

Incumbent Shows Outstanding Strength In All Districts Of Circleville As Heavy Off-Year Ballot Is Cast

HEDGES AHEAD IN FOUR PRECINCTS

John Himrod Reelected To Serve Again As Treasurer; Entire Council Named Without Republican Opposition

Circleville voters, marching to the polls Tuesday in numbers that amazed the most optimistic election board officials, expressed their confidence in the administration of William B. Cady by returning him to the mayor's office for the next two years. The 62-year-old army veteran defeated ex-Mayor Benton T. Hedges, his Republican foe, by 385 votes. The margin came as a surprise to the Democratic incumbent's supporters, several of whom predicted that he might win by 200 ballots. Many "men on the street" forecast a Hedges victory, but early reports that filtered into the election board office from the city's north end gave the mayor a lead that was never seriously threatened.

Cady's greatest strength came from the middle and northern sections of the county seat, but his vote gathering ability was proved by the support he received in the other parts of the city. The mayor lost in only four precincts, First Ward D, Helvering and Scharenberg station; Second Ward B, Gordon's storeroom, East Mound Street; Fourth Ward B, Goeller's factory, and Fourth Ward C, Ladoga Co. office.

The mayor came through with 289 votes in the First Ward A precinct, Helwage's garage, and 253 in Second Ward A, the fire department, for his highest figures. His lowest number was received in First Ward D, 79 votes. Mr. Hedges gathered 213 in Fourth Ward C, his strongest precinct, and 88 in First Ward B, Nelson's service station, for his lowest number.

GERMANS ANNEX TWO MORE SHIPS FOR CONTRABAND

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 8.—Two more neutral steamers—the Swedish freighter Rita and the 1,290-ton Finnish vessel Otava—were in the hands of German prize crews today after capture under circumstances that recalled the celebrated City of Flint cast.

(Lloyd's register of shipping lists the Rita as a freighter of 1,735 tons under Norwegian rather than Swedish registry.)

The Rita, bound for the United States with a cargo of pulp, was captured south of Sweden and with a German prize crew aboard, was reported headed for Germany.

Captured in the Baltic, the Otava, also loaded with pulp, was first reported to have been forced by heavy seas to put in at the Swedish port of Sundvall. Later advices said the vessel had been sighted south of Stockholm, bound for Germany.

TOTAL VOTE FOR ELECTION FIXED AT OVER 9,900

The total vote cast in Pickaway County Tuesday was 9,916, the board of elections announced Wednesday noon.

The vote included 3,377 in Circleville and 6,539 in the rural district, including villages.

UNSUCCESSFUL CANDIDATE DIES AFTER COLLAPSE

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—Edwin H. Trautman, 47, unsuccessful candidate for the Columbus city council, died in Grant Hospital early today a week after he collapsed on a downtown corner. A heart ailment caused death.

In the council race, Trautman polled 36,466 votes, just 2,228 less than he needed to be elected. Trautman, a Republican, was an unsuccessful candidate for state representative last year.

CITIZENS REFUSE TO APPROVE TWO SPECIAL ISSUES

Three-Mill Question Given 1,892-757 Advantage In Tuesday's Election

BERGER BUILDING DENIED

C. Of C. Pleased With Vote Given To City Manager Plan In First Try

Circleville voters, Tuesday, proved their loyalty to the city's school system by voting favorably on the continuation of the three-mill levy for general operating expenses, but refused to sponsor an addition to Berger Hospital and expressed their opposition to a change in the form of government now in operation in the city by turning down a move that would have inaugurated the city manager system.

School officials were elated by the vote of 1,892 to 757 received by the three-mill issue. The measure, they pointed out in their campaign, does not add to the city's taxation burden but is merely a continuation of a levy that has been effective for the last 25 years. Each of the city's 11 precincts voted in favor of the levy.

The blow to the Pickaway County Medical Society that sponsored the vote on the hospital addition was a bitter one especially since the physicians declared that more room is an imperative need at the municipal institution. For the second time a bond issue for the hospital has failed because of the 65 percent margin that is required for such issues. A year ago a $10,000 appeal was refused although the majority of folk voting on the measure favored it. The same thing happened Tuesday when 1,428 persons voted for the $20,000 issue and 1,088 chafed their ballots against it. Election board officials said that considering the number of votes cast the issue required 1,645 for passage.

Whether the question will be brought up again soon is not certain, physicians said, but if it is voted on again it is likely that the measure will be offered at a time when no other controversial issues are at stake. This year the hospital question accompanied two others to the polls, and only one, the school question, survived.

Chamber of Commerce officials were pleased Wednesday with the outcome of the charter government issue although it was beaten by 527 votes. It garnered 937 supporters against 1,464 who voted against it. The C. of C. declared that since few persons were acquainted with the question that they believed it would receive added support if and when offered again.

City Manager Sought
The question was whether a commission should be named to draft a charter. Had the vote been favorable 15 men chosen by the Chamber of Commerce and whose names appeared on the ballot would have drafted a charter and offered it to the city at a special election. The move would have led to a city manager.

Votes cast for each man nominated for the charter commission appear elsewhere in Wednesday's Daily Herald.

Ex-Educator At Head Of Ticket; Phillips Runs Fourth

A former school superintendent, an incumbent member of the board and a milling company executive were placed on Circleville's new board of education, Tuesday, in an interesting contest that saw the defeat of Dr. G. D. Phillips, member of the board who was running for reelection.

J. O. Eagleson, North Pickaway Street, who served the Circleville schools as high school principal from 1918 to 1920 and as superintendent from 1920 until 1933, led the board of education non-partisan ticket by gathering a grand total of 2,122 votes. Behind him came Clarence R. Barnhart, present clerk of the board, who gained 1,589 votes, only 19 more than Ray E. Rowland, Ralston-Purina Co. general manager, received in his first effort to gain a public office in Circleville.

Dr. Phillips ran neck and neck with Barnhart and Rowland for a while, but gradually fell behind to receive 1,375. For several hours, during the early balloting, it was Rowland, Phillips and Barnhart, then Phillips, Barnhart and Rowland, then Barnhart, Rowland and Phillips, but down the home stretch when each precinct reporting meant just one less to be counted, Barnhart and Rowland pulled away. All Precincts Topped
A sample of Mr. Eagleson's strength is shown in the fact that he topped the other candidates in each of the city's precincts.

Donald H. Watt, fifth candidate, tallied 941 votes.
The new school board will be reorganized in January, a new chairman to be chosen to replace Charles H. May, who is retiring from the board after many years of service. Holdover members are Lawrence Goeller and Mrs. Lillian B. Moore, whose terms do not expire for two years.

All five of the candidates reside in the same ward, four of them in the same precinct, First Ward A. Mr. Eagleson led there with 278 votes to 244 for Barnhart, 220 for Rowland, 195 for Phillips and 96 for Watt. Rowland is the only one of the five who does not live in Precinct A of the First Ward.

Board of education members serve without salary although the clerk, who may be a member of the board or may be a private individual, receives $600 annually. Mr. Barnhart has served as clerk for the last several years. Board members revealed Wednesday that the school business of the city is even larger than the municipality's business during a year's time, more than $100,000 being handled in the schools and less than $75,000 in the city's funds.

GREEN TO TAKE GESSAMAN'S JOB IN CAPITAL CITY

COLUMBUS, Nov. 8.—Floyd F. Green, 43-year-old former city councilman, today was the winner in his race with incumbent Myron B. Gessaman for mayor of Ohio's capital city.

Green, who was backed by the Franklin County Republican organization, held a 6,000 vote lead over Gessaman, also a Republican. The vote stood Green, 45,205; Gessaman, 39,048.

Election At Glance

Cady defeats Hedges by 385 for mayor; Himrod wins reelection as treasurer by 1109 over Gard; Eagleson, Barnhart and Rowland named to city board of education; Berger Hospital bond issue and charter plan defeated; three-mill school levy approved; Manson chosen as trustee, Lane as township clerk; county votes against Bigelow issues almost 6 to 1 and opposes state board of education and referendum on civil service act; Young and Dick renamed to county board of education; Trio of special issues in county school districts approved; Fred Hines elected mayor of Ashville; other villages choose officials.

SPECIAL ISSUES GAIN APPROVAL IN COUNTY AREA

Three special issues in Pickaway County rural districts, all for schools, carried in Tuesday's election.

Voters in the New Holland and Williamsport School Districts approved three mill levies for school operating expenses. The vote in New Holland district was 281 for the levy and 103 against. In Williamsport the vote was 378 for the levy and 166 against. Election officials explained that these totals would be changed by votes from overlapping districts, but the changes would not be sufficient to alter the result of the issues.

A bond issue for $3,800 for heating plant improvements in the school in Williamsport was given more than a 65 percent majority. The total vote for the village and township on the issue was 378 for and 152 against. These figures will be changed slightly by small returns from overlapping districts.

Democrat Wins Over G. O. P. Foe By 385 Margin

Incumbent Shows Outstanding Strength In All Districts Of Circleville As Heavy Off-Year Ballot Is Cast

HEDGES AHEAD IN FOUR PRECINCTS

John Himrod Reelected To Serve Again As Treasurer; Entire Council Named Without Republican Opposition

Circleville voters, marching to the polls Tuesday in numbers that amazed the most optimistic election board officials, expressed their confidence in the administration of William B. Cady by returning him to the mayor's office for the next two years. The 62-year-old army veteran defeated ex-Mayor Benton T. Hedges, his Republican foe, by 385 votes. The margin came as a surprise to the Democratic incumbent's supporters, several of whom predicted that he might win by 200 ballots. Many "men on the street" forecast a Hedges victory, but early reports that filtered into the election board office from the city's north end gave the mayor a lead that was never seriously threatened.

Cady's greatest strength came from the middle and northern sections of the county seat, but his vote gathering ability was proved by the support he received in the other parts of the city. The mayor lost in only four precincts, First Ward D, Helvering and Schenberg station; Second Ward B, Gordon's storeroom, East Mound Street; Fourth Ward B, Goeller's factory, and Fourth Ward C, Ladoga Co. office.

The mayor came through with 289 votes in the First Ward A precinct, Helwagen's garage, and 253 in Second Ward A, the fire department, for his highest figures. His lowest number was received in First Ward D, 79 votes. Mr. Hedges gathered 213 in Fourth Ward C, his strongest precinct, and 88 in First Ward B, Nelson's service station, for his lowest number.

Plea Based on Record
Mayor Cady campaigned on his record, calling attention to the fact that during 1935, 1936 and 1938 and to November 1, 1939, that he had turned $12,313.75 in fines into the city treasury, declaring that this amount was more than his opponent collected during six years as mayor. Mr. Hedges holds a distinction, however, that no one else can claim. He is the only Republican to ever serve three consecutive terms in the city's chief executive position.

Cady gathered 1,829 votes in the unofficial tabulation, compared with Hedges' 1,444.

John E. Himrod, incumbent Democratic treasurer, was victorious in his contest with Harry Gard, East Franklin Street Republican. Himrod collected 1,938 ballots against 829 for Mr. Gard.

These contests were the only ones for office in the city government. All other officials, all Democrats, were elected without opposition. They include John C. Goeller, president of council, 1,859; Lillian Young, auditor, 2,049; Joseph W. Adkins, Jr., solicitor, 1,894; councilmen-at-large, Ben H. Gordon, 1,948; Clarence Helvering, 1,756; Frank A. Lynch, 1,982; first ward, Donald Mason, 701; second ward, Julius Helwagen, 321; third ward, George Groom, 320; W. M. Reid, 399.

To Serve Third Term
Mayor Cady, when he takes office for his new term next January, will actually be serving his third term as mayor although the terms did not come consecutively. He served in 1935 and 1936, was defeated by Will J. Graham for reelection, then came back to defeat Graham to win the term he is now ending.

The mayor, whose splendid physique belies his age, served in the United States army from 1898 until July 2, 1923, when he was

GERMANS ANNEX TWO MORE SHIPS FOR CONTRABAND

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 8.—Two more neutral steamers—the Swedish freighter Rita and the 1,290-ton Finnish vessel Otova—were in the hands of German prize crews today after capture under circumstances that recalled the celebrated City of Flint cast.

(Lloyd's register of shipping lists the Rita as a freighter of 1,735 tons under Norwegian rather than Swedish registry.)

The Rita, bound for the United States with a cargo of pulp, was captured south of Sweden and with a German prize crew aboard, was reported headed for Germany.

Captured in the Baltic, the Otova, also loaded with pulp, was first reported to have been forced by heavy seas to put in at the Swedish port of Sundvall. Later advice said the vessel had been sighted south of Stockholm, bound for Germany.

TOTAL VOTE FOR ELECTION FIXED AT OVER 9,900

The total vote cast in Pickaway County Tuesday was 9,916, the board of elections announced Wednesday noon.

The vote included 3,377 in Circleville and 6,539 in the rural district, including villages.

Washington Breathes Sigh After Pension Issue Goes To Discard

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—The off-year election slipped quietly into history today after apparently sidetracking the old age pension issue from the coming presidential campaign but without revealing any definite trend for 1940.

Democratic and Republican politicians saw cause for rejoicing in the varied election returns. While clashing over the portent of other results, chieftains of both major parties hailed the overwhelming opposition of California and Ohio voters to large state pensions as definitely taking that question out of the 1940 campaign.

There had been a deep fear in Washington that the old age pension issue might become of such national moment by 1940 as to force the major parties to declare in their platforms on the question of increasing old age pensions. This fear was heightened somewhat when northeastern Republicans and western Democrats in the last congress voted to increase federal pensions.

Look Toward Campaign

Now the politicians feel they can face the next campaign without declaring for larger pensions. They feel reassured by the 2-1 repudiation of the "ham and eggs" $30-every-Thursday plan by California voters—where the old age pension issue was first raised—and the 3-1 defeat of the $50-every-month pension by Ohio voters.

There were no surprises in the three congressional contests, in which national issues were debated. In the traditionally Republican 34th New York (Binghamton) district, the Republican, Edwin A. Hall, won as expected. In the Democratic 4th Pennsylvania (Philadelphia) district, a Democrat, John E. Sheridan, won over the Republican, Boise Penrose, Jr., nephew of the one-time Republican boss, by a small majority. In the first South Carolina district, Mrs. Clara McMillan, Democrat, won without contest the seat formerly held by her late husband.

In other contests, both the Democrats and the Republicans had their share of victories. The Democrats won the only two governorships at stake, electing Kean Johnson handily in Kentucky and Paul B. Johnson without a contest in Mississippi. They also were delighted with their majorities in New York state and in strategic sections of New Jersey.

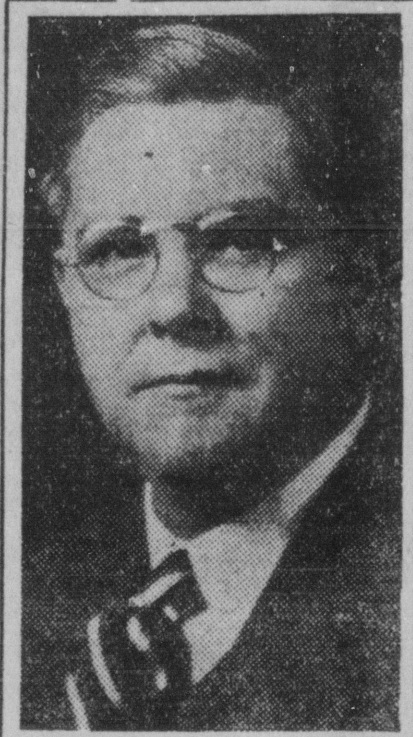

G. O. P. Ahead Also

The G.O.P. tasted victory too. They elected another Republican mayor in Philadelphia, and re-elected a Republican mayor in Cleveland. In Philadelphia Robert E. Lamberton won by 30,000 as compared to a 50,000 victory for his G.O.P. predecessor in 1935. This outcome was not regarded as significant by Democrats, because Philadelphia went for President Roosevelt in 1936 by 200,000. The Cleveland outcome also failed to shock Democrats, since Mayor Harold H. Burton won in a non-partisan contest over another Republican.

cattle feeders held in the Farm Bureau Home. L. P. McCann, extension specialist of beef production, was speaker for the meeting.

Mr. McCann told the feeders there has been an increase of 39 percent in cattle shipments to corn belt states over last year. He reported a 41 percent increase in feeder lambs to corn belt states. The increase in cattle shipments is largely calves that will come to market in late 1940. He said good calves are selling on the range for 11 and 12 cents a pound. Heavier cattle are lower in price.

The speaker said there are so many different factors affecting the cattle feeding business that it is difficult to predict market conditions or prices for the next 10 months. A normal marketing of steers is predicted to take place in the early part of 1941. Cows and heifers will be held back for breeding purposes so fewer are expected to come to market during 1940. He reported an increase in the number of breeding herds in the corn belt. Exports of beef, he believed, is not expected to greatly influence the price during the next six months.

Industrial activity, he explained, will increase the buying power of the laborer and more purchases will tend to absorb the increased supply of beef, holding prices steady. An increased demand for hides and leather may also have a favorable influence on cattle prices, he explained.

Suggestions on feeding were given. The cost of getting grain ground, he explained, should be used as a guide in determining whether to feed whole or ground feed. Ground feed, especially corn, is four to five percent more efficient than shelled corn. The coarser the grinding the better the cattle like it.

In conclusion Mr. McCann stated that one could not always determine profits by cash returns. Selling margins, he explained, are not always essential to profit but economy of grains are a determining factor.

PILOT REPORTS WIFE KIDNAPED ON WEST COAST

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8 — A report that his wife, Laswell Byars, 21-year-old movie actress, had disappeared and apparently was kidnaped was made early today by George Byars, test pilot, to police, who immediately notified San Francisco authorities to search for the young woman.

Byars declared in a signed report to police that he received a telephone call Monday afternoon from his wife, who said she was going to Republic studio to see about a forthcoming film assignment, but that she failed to come home for dinner.

About 11 o'clock that night, he said, he answered his telephone and heard his wife's voice.
"Where are you?" he asked.
"I don't know," she replied.

To additional questions his wife answered only "yes" or "no," and he "sensed there was something wrong," Byars informed Detective Lieut. Compton Dixon.

Byars traced the call to a town near Oxnard and that he sped in his automobile to the town, hoping to overtake his wife and a man but failed to find them.

Last night, he continued, he received another call from his wife, this time from a hotel in San Francisco. Again it was a "yes" and "no" conversation, with Byars asking:
"Has he got a gun on you?"
"Yes."
"Won't he let you loose?"
"No."

Byars told officers he would sign a district attorney's complaint against a man he suspects of having kidnaped his wife.

CAPITAL SEEKS FOOTBALL EDGE AT OTTERBEIN

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 8—Capital University will attempt to stay in the win column this week when it journeys to Westerville on Saturday to contest the Tan and Cardinal of Otterbein.

The Lutherans have the chance this week to make the best record of any Capital University team since their entry into the Ohio Conference. The purple gridgers of this year have rolled up the total of 104 points with one game still to be played, while last year, the season's total was 105 points.

In 1930, Capital allowed their opponents 45 points, the least number to date, and this record also seems on the brink of tottering, for in their six games so far, the opposition has only pushed 24 tallies across the Purple goal line.

To date this season, Otterbein has scored only six points, and those were against Bowling Green on an intercepted pass. The dry-towners however have always put up their toughest battle against Capital, and this week's encounter should prove no exception.

Capital will have nine seniors playing their last game in Saturday's fray. They are: Carl Baun, Norman Steinart, Chuck Heilman, Ed Goehenour, Charles Townley, Dale Helmich, Paul Weaver, Ed Long, and Rowland Wenzel.

LIVELY and interesting occurrences are read from the predominant planetary aspects, with much stirring in both business and intimate relations. The social, sentimental artistic or intellectual aspect may be uppermost, calling for some drastic maneuvering to successfully put over major programs. This may involve minor changes, not entirely satisfactory, but in all be guided by personal intuitions rather than suggestions of others. Refrain from irritability and acting on impulses.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a lively and fruitful year, with much definite action in business as well as in the realm of the artistic, social, emotional or intellectual. In making changes be guided by persistent intuition urges or the advice of questionable friends. Much is to be expected from creative work in artistic lines—drama, music, literature—where determined application should win recognition.

A child born on this day may be particularly versatile, probably in the direction of the allied arts or in literature. Its energy, skill and creative ability should win success.

In 1930, Capital allowed their opponents 45 points, the least number to date, and this record also seems on the brink of tottering, for in their six games so far, the opposition has only pushed 24 tallies across the Purple goal line.

To date this season, Otterbein has scored only six points, and those were against Bowling Green on an intercepted pass. The dry-towners however have always put up their toughest battle against Capital, and this week's encounter should prove no exception.

Capital will have nine seniors playing their last game in Saturday's fray. They are: Carl Baun, Norman Steinart, Chuck Heilman, Ed Gochenour, Charles Townley, Dale Helmich, Paul Weaver, Ed Long, and Rowland Wenzel.

LIVELY and interesting occurrences are read from the predominant planetary aspects, with much stirring in both business and intimate relations. The social, sentimental artistic or intellectual aspect may be upmost, calling for some drastic maneuvering to successfully put over major programs. This may involve minor changes, not entirely satisfactory, but in all be guided by personal intuitions rather than suggestions of others. Refrain from irritability and acting on impulses.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a lively and fruitful year, with much definite action in business as well as in the realm of the artistic, social, emotional or intellectual. In making changes be guided by insistent intuitional urges or the advice of questionable friends. Much is to be expected from creative work in artistic lines—drama, music, literature—where determined application should win recognition.

A child born on this day may be particularly versatile, probably in the direction of the allied arts or in literature. Its energy, skill and creative ability should win success.

LAND FOR INDIANS

THE state of Michigan has seized title to half a million pieces of property for unpaid taxes. This is vacant and unused land. The owners had passed up their last opportunity to redeem it in a delinquent tax sale last May. The present action wipes out $100,000,000 of tax bills and obviously puts the state of Michigan rather deeply into the real estate business.

The same thing has happened on a big scale in various other states during the last ten years. This obviously is turning back the clock as far as national development is concerned. Forfeiting so much acreage for taxes is going half way toward giving it back to the Indians. In some of the more sparsely settled states, where Indian tribes still live, that might be a practical solution.

BRITAIN'S "CONFIRMABILITY"

ONE of the latest announcements from the British government must leave the Nazis rather dizzy. It also has that effect on Americans. Prime Minister Chamberlain is quoted as saying in the House of Commons, after Premier Molotov's arrogant speech on foreign policy: "Nothing has occurred to shake our confirmability to overcome the submarine menace," in spite of the losses inflicted on British shipping.

We've looked in vain in the office dictionary to find out what the Prime Minister means by such language. Even the unabridged doesn't have it. But we seem to get the general idea that Mr. Chamberlain and Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, are going to fight it out on that line if it takes all winter.

A SOUND UPTURN

THE present business boom is attributed by some experts to the psychological effects of the European war more than to actual war business. This view seems plausible when it is remembered that the revival began, and was far advanced, before there was any assurance of repealing the munitions embargo.

Conditions, however, seem to have been ripe for a business upturn. Col. T. W. Chevalier, publisher of Business Week Magazine, says this upward spiral is on a sound economic basis so far. It represents the building up of depleted inventories and natural expansion of industrial facilities, accompanied by growing employment and greater buying by consumers.

The outbreak of war, he adds, was a "shot in the arm" intensifying this natural development.

Such a view suggests that a high rate of production and employment might continue even if the war stopped.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

THE UNITED STATES doesn't realize how bad a drought it's had in recent months, Senator John H. Bankhead informs us.

Why don't we realize it? Why, says the Alabama solon, we don't realize it because our newspapers haven't printed anything all summer except stuff about the European situation and, during the autumn, about the war and our neutrality debate, entirely disregarding domestic conditions.

The agriculture department agrees with Senator Bankhead.

The department's story is that the dust storms we've had in the dry belt heretofore will be recalled as damp weather in comparison with what we've got coming unless we get barrelsful of rain in the near future, or huge quantities of snow, to melt in the early springtime.

It's predicted that 25 percent of our population in 29 states will be afflicted with short crops in 1940, from present indications.

WEATHER BUREAU AGREES

It sounds strange, considering stories of overproduction of our farm stuff. Nevertheless, Senator Bankhead, who's chairman of the upper congressional chamber's committee on irrigation and reclamation, vouchers for it. The weather bureau indorses him.

Western Kansas is said to be the worst spot.

A generation ago "dry farming" was preached in the semi-arid west.

There was a weekly newspaper, known as Campbell's Soil Culture, which boosted this doctrine. I worked for it in its day. I believed in it, not knowing anything about "soil culture." I don't believe that many farmers knew, either.

The idea was this: Plough very deeply. Then pulverize two or three inches of the surface into dust. Probably not much rain would fall on the dust blanket, but the blanket was depended on to sop up every bit of moisture it did get—to keep the juice from evaporating, and let it seep through into the dirt underneath.

The scheme worked pretty well for awhile. Then western winds began to blow the dust blanket off. O. K., the farmers simply pulverized a few successive inches into the face of the earth. But finally they got down to what's called as hardpan. No productive soil remained, for moisture to soak into.

CROPS VERSUS GRAZING

Some of this country was more or less adapted to crops. It didn't need any tinkering. It would grow wheat and corn and miscellaneous vegetation anyway.

Some of it, in the semi-arid region, needed to be left in the form of turf, for cattle to chew on. The turf held the surface down to a pastoral terra firma. When it blew off, nothing was left for cattle, and neither was anything left to grow crops on.

The agriculture department recommends wind-breaks—rows of trees to head off dust storms. The notion's all right, but belated.

Maybe the Sahara desert could have been regulated, if taken in hand promptly.

Anyway, the subject's drowned out right now by foreign complications.

Senator Bankhead very properly calls attention to the fact that our own weather concerns us.

Some authorities say that we could, if we tried, make longer-in-advance forecasts. That's problematic. Director Charles G. Abbott of the Smithsonian Institution looks on to the sun's cycles. They're about 11 years at a clatter.

This is weather, y'understand. Not any other kind of prophesy.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

PRESIDENT PLANS TOUR

WASHINGTON — In these uncertain times, making plans for a junket as far ahead as April is optimism plus, but Roosevelt is doing it just the same.

If conditions permit he intends to make the trans-continental trip in April which he had scheduled for this fall but had to call off because of war.

The President revealed his plan to Illinois Representatives Sabath, McKeough and Kelly when they personally invited him to address the Chicago Army Day celebration next April.

"I think that can be arranged," he told them. "If I can get away from Washington, I intend to make a swing across the country about that time and will be delighted to stop off in Chicago. Of course, I can't make a definite promise to be there on Army Day until the itinerary has been worked out, but if it can be arranged, I'll be there."

He added that he had in mind a "leisurely trip to view old scenes and renew old friendships," also that if San Francisco's Fair is reopened and running, he will spend at least one day there.

"It was a real regret to me not to be able to get there this year," he said. "I wanted to see that Fair very much. I saw it while it still was under construction and it must have been a beauty."

The President did not amplify what he meant by a leisurely trip to view old scenes and renew old friendships, and his visitors did not ask him. But as they rode down Pennsylvania Avenue to their Capitol offices they wondered whether he was planning a farewell tour or an expedition to sound out public sentiment toward a third term.

GERMAN DIPLOMATS

Most unenviable position of any lady in the Diplomatic Corps today is Frau Thomsen, wife of the charge d'affaires of the German Embassy.

Frau Thomsen is one of the most beautiful members of the Diplomatic Corps and also one of the most charming. Hungarian by birth, she may or may not sympathize with Hitler, probably does not. But feeling in Washington is such that regardless of her personal views, the wife of any German diplomat can be none too happy.

An indication of this was given the other day when Frau Thomsen remarked to a friend:

"I did not buy any clothes in Europe before I came, thinking I would buy them here. But now since the war started it looks as if I wouldn't buy any at all. There is no occasion to wear them."

Solving Pains That Puzzle

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Tooth Pain

from Sweets

What is the mechanism of pain in a tooth on the contact of sweets?

This is a fact but it is without any very definite explanation. Of course, it means that there is a cavity in the tooth. Contact with sweets does not cause pain in the case of an intact tooth. We must assume that the nerve endings which are exposed in the dentine of a cavity are sensitive to the chemical stimulus of sweets. The enamel overlying the dentine of the tooth acts as a protector, and if the tooth is exposed close to the gum margin where the enamel stops, pain will be caused in this fashion.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It is, of course, easy to explain the effect of temperature, hot liquids, or cold liquids, upon tooth pain.

Under any circumstances, the pain is a protective device of nature and means: Go see your dentist.

Aching Corns

When It Rains

Why do corns hurt during damp or rainy weather?

The relation of barometric pressure to pains of the joints and of calluses, such as corns and scars, is principally due to changes in the caliber of the blood vessels and to changes in blood pressure at this time.

In a series of about 1,000 rheumatic patients, this symptom was acknowledged in over 80 per cent.

Value of Bacon

for Babies

Is bacon good or bad for babies, or does it make any difference?

Children's doctors and mothers are likely to advise the addition of a little bacon to the diet of babies and small children. HYGEIA, the official journal of the American Medical Association, recently asked several children's doctors whether this was a good practice. Their replies were as follows:

"There is no adequate explanation for the common practice of adding bacon to the diet of babies."

"If it is done, as is commonly said, to give the baby something to chew on, other articles of diet could be used to better advantage, such as toasted bread crusts or zwieback."

"The use of bacon in the diets of babies and small children was for many years a fairly common practice among doctors, but I think it has pretty well died out. It is a little difficult to tell why it had so long a popularity."

"Bacon contains no nutritional factor besides the fat and protein."

"The old-fashioned bacon rind that some babies got in a certain strata of society is fortunately no longer encountered and I believe had no real standing with physicians."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. J. M.: "Is it all right to give beer to a baby from six months until he is several years old? My baby is nine months old, and I have refused to let him have any. My mother-in-law says that it will not hurt him, as it will only make him sleep."

Answer—Good heavens, no! It is not all right to give a baby, six months old, beer; nor six years old. It is very bad. A baby, nine months old, will sleep all right, and beer will just make it sleep an unnatural, profound sleep. I think a good, old-fashioned mother-in-law fight, so that she would stay away for a year, would do your household good.

M. H.: "What is the average or normal blood pressure of a person at the age of 21?"

Answer—The systolic pressure—that is, when the heart is in contraction—should be from 100 to 120. The diastolic—when the heart is opening or in relaxation—should be 70 to 80. The figures refer to millimeters of mercury pressure. There is no definite normal; the blood pressure, like every functioning thing in the body, changes.

Shadow Over Hill House

By ELLIOTT FILLION
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

THE INSTANT I stepped behind Coral and presented the print over her left shoulder, while I pointed with the pencil from over her right, I knew she would object to my close proximity. Before she could move or speak, I bent quickly forward and my nose actually brushed the shining curls on her head.

She jerked angrily away from me and muttered something under her breath. I paid no attention, but placed the point of my pencil on the break, and said in a low voice: "This is the break in the sole."

She barely glanced at it before she snapped pettishly: "I never saw the thing before, and if I had I wouldn't know it. I don't go around looking at the soles of people's shoes or footprints, either."

The remark wasn't addressed to me. I didn't have to answer it. In as indifferent a manner as I could manage, I moved on to Joseph Barry.

I didn't know what to think. The aroma I had expected to find simply wasn't there. Her hair was heavy with fragrance, she must have dumped a whole bottle of perfume on it, but it wasn't that tangy odor I so faintly remembered. I had been so sure I would find it on her, that the failure almost floored me. My head was in an absolute whirl, and I needed every ounce of steadiness I possessed.

I didn't put my arms about Joseph Barry's neck, you may be sure. I merely leaned over his chair and went through the same procedure with print and pencil. I wasn't at all surprised when I drew a blank. I knew darned well it wasn't the odor of dye I had smelled that night.

I got my second surprise when I went to Bruce Orton. It wasn't from the odor on his hair. That was entirely different from the one I had in mind. He looked casually at first at the print. Then, to my surprise, he leaned closer and looked again.

"I've certainly seen that print before," he announced.

At his words we all stared at him. I stepped back and looked at him critically. The print had been shown merely for the purpose of giving me an opportunity to get near each person. That anyone would recognize it was, I am sure, a great surprise to both Captain Lancy and the chief.

"You have? Where?" ejaculated the detective.

"I don't know," admitted Orton. "I only know that I have seen it somewhere."

"Think, man, think!" cried Chief Forrest. He was as excited as a man of his official type could be. "You must remember, you must!"

"I think," said Orton slowly. "It must have been on the beach. I have a dim memory of lying some place and noticing that mark alongside. It must have been at the beach. That is the only place where I have lain down here at Winnetka."

I hate your pestiferous wood ticks too much to lie on the grass."

Orton's face reflected the struggle he was making to recall the elusive memory. It was in vain.

"I can't remember anything else," he said decidedly. "I know I've seen it, and that is all I do know. I can't place when or where."

Lancy nodded approvingly. "Very good, Orton. You've helped a bit at that. Dr. Rutherford, and you, too, Barry, look at the print again and see if you can recall any such impression? Orton's recollection may have improved your memory."

I couldn't decide whether his words were sarcastic or not, but obediently I went back to Dr. Paul and Barry. Both looked longer and more closely this time than they had done previously, but both were forced to admit that, as far as they were concerned, the case was hopeless.

"I never lie on the beach," Dr. Paul said, "and I don't imagine anyone would notice such a small thing as that break unless the print was under their eyes for a long period of time."

"I think Dr. Rutherford's right," Barry said. "I have walked on the beach a good deal, but when I sit or lie down, I always use a rug, so naturally I wouldn't notice anything of that sort."

"All right, Miss Gordon, try Dr. Peake. We'll hope his memory works."

But it didn't, and I didn't get a trace of any perfume from his hair. I knew I wouldn't. I'd stood and sat near enough to him to be sure that I would have recognized it before, if he had been the bearer.

Another thing, too. To my mind it was absolutely impossible for Neal to have left us on the terrace, gone around the house and cottages, and come up the other side of the house to meet me. It just couldn't be done in that length of time, even if one ran every step of the way and, from my own experience, I knew that was impossible.

Rhoda sat next, and I put my arms around her neck as I had done around Coral. She didn't try to jerk away as though I would bite her. She looked closely at the print, and as she did so I got a good view of her hair. For a moment my heart turned sick. I actually thought that I'd found that elusive odor. But it was only for a fleeting second that I thought that. The next moment I knew that, though it did bear a decided resemblance, it was really different. Yet there was a tinge of the fragrance I remembered. I'd leaned over Rhoda a thousand times in the past. Why hadn't I caught that faint spicy perfume before?

Then I remembered that Rhoda changed her perfume as often as she did her cosmetics, and that was every time a new one came on the market. This was probably something new she was trying out, but the fright had actually turned my hands icy cold.

Again memory came to my aid. Rhoda, Duncan and Josie were all with me on the terrace when the scream sounded. They had run one way, I the other. If it were impossible for Neal to have gone completely around the house and met me in the time limit, it was much more impossible for Rhoda to have done so, unless she had suddenly sprouted wings or borrowed a broomstick and sailed over the housetop.

No, regardless of anything my memory tried to assert, Rhoda was out. She made her own contribution to the police in her own inimitable way.

"Captain Lancy," she said pertly, "I never noticed a footprint in my life. Now that I've seen this one, I'll probably carry a magnifying glass in my pocket and examine every one I see. But, as far as I'm concerned this—no soap."

Coming from anyone else, her remarks would have savored of unbearable impertinence, but, as ever, that girl can get away with—murder. I was going to say. The detective smiled at her and I passed on to Dunc.

Good old Dunc. I knew I'd never find that perfume on him or any other, either. Dunc is a confirmed addict to hot showers, followed by cold. By the time he gets through with the bathroom there's not one drop of even warm water left in the boiler, and the strongest perfume manufactured couldn't live on his soaked and scoured body.

"Sorry," he said now. "I'm not quite so bad as Rhoda. I have noticed footprints in my life but, if I ever saw this one before, it didn't make any impression on me."

Josie was the next in line, and as I bent over her, I knew just what I would find. The refreshing odor of good soap and water is always with Josie. Evanescent as that of a flower, it still is noticeable. I got my third surprise in what she said.

"I think I'm like Bruce," her voice was hesitant. "I seem to remember seeing that print somewhere." She raised her lovely eyes to Lancy's face.

"If, as Bruce thinks, he saw it on the beach, I may have done so, too, for I often lie on the sand."

"You're not sure?" asked the chief quickly.

"I can't be sure," she said gently, "but I have that impression."

"Too bad you or Orton can't recall it clearly," he said then, "but it's scarcely to be expected that you should. I think we've done very well to establish the fact that two persons saw it previously."

At his nod I passed on to Alan. He was sitting in a large armchair nearest the table, and when I should have showed him the print I would have completed the round. I was glad of it, too, for deep in my heart I hated the job.

I stepped up to Alan and, bending over, held the print before him. I staggered and would have fallen had I not had sufficient presence of mind to drop down upon the wide arm of his chair. The pencil fell from my nerveless fingers, and he bent to pick it up.

I looked up and met Captain Lancy's steady eyes staring mine. He told me afterward that, the moment he saw the stricken expression on my face, he knew the truth.

League Told Importance Of Reading to Children

Speaker Talks Of New Teaching Methods

Social Calendar

Miss Virginia Stewart of Van Wert was guest speaker Tuesday at the luncheon meeting of the Child Conservation League at the Sandwich Grill. Twenty-four members were served at 1 o'clock.

Miss Stewart spoke generally on the importance of reading for the school child, and the importance of the choice of good books for his use. Through reading, the child should be able to acquire the ability to entertain and interest himself for the rest of his life.

She went into the details of the new method of teaching reading versus the old. She spoke of the new school readers as progressively holding the interest of the pupils. Small children are instructed in reading by illustrations, being attracted by sight, not by the hard method of memorizing words.

Stressing the importance of a good vocabulary for children, she urged that teachers check the vocabulary of students with standard word lists. She mentioned how the vocabulary is increased by reading, and the better teaching of reading by the study of phonics.

She said that parents should direct the choice of children in the comic strips to those using better characters and should improve their taste by having them read the ones telling consecutive stories in simple but good English.

Mrs. Joe Adkins, Jr., was elected to membership during the business hour. Plans were discussed for the presentation of "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp" which the league will sponsor November 30 at the Cliftona Theatre.

About This And That In Many Sports

Rae Bales, who returned recently after a sojourn in the East, says that Clemson, from the South, will have one of the best teams in the country next year. . . . He saw Clemson take the Navy, and in convincing fashion. . . . "The second team is as good as the first," Bales said, and all of the varsity boys are back for another year. . . . Leonard Simonetti, 215-pound New Philadelphia, O., fullback and a star basketball player despite his girth, has enrolled at the University of Tennessee and is playing center on the first freshman team. . . . Simonetti was at Marshall College last year, but left there for some reason. . . . New Philadelphia has another boy for whom Ohio colleges, and probably some out of the state, will probable battle. . . . He is another Italian lad, Jack Castiglione, who is playing left halfback for the fourth consecutive year. . . . The team on which he plays has lost two games in the last three years and last week defeated Bellaire on the latter's field, 6-2, before 7,000 persons. . . . Do you know that Ohio State University is the only school in Ohio that outdraws Massillon high school? —The Tigers of the Stark County school have now drawn more than 100,000 through the gate so far this year, and the Canton McKinley game has not yet been played. . . . Many Circlevillians, maybe not so many since the Illinois debacle, will go to Ann Arbor Saturday to see the Wolverines and Minnesota tangle. . . . Tiger gridders will be asked to name an honorary captain at the close of the season Friday in Hillsboro. . . . Wouldn't it be nice if our Red and Black boys could be equipped like the lads of the other schools in the SCOT? . . . It is rather disheartening to see opponents trot on the field dressed in wind breakers and other equipment of which our boys have none. . . . Ashville high school's cagers appear again to be the cream of the county despite the loss of Walden, Hoover and Nance. . . . Junior Gregg and Barney Rose are back, and both boys are good enough for any high school team hereabouts. . . . Amanda will be strong again, the state tourney crew having many veterans back. . . . A new coach will be on the scene this year. . . . One of the best schools in the county to expand its athletic plant will be Walnut. . . . The Walnut building, which houses the largest student body of any school in the county, also contains the smallest gymnasium now that Atlanta has built. . . . A WHISPERED HUNCH. Iowa over Notre Dame. . . . A grid game expected to draw local attention Saturday is that between Ohio University and Miami at Athens. . . . The basketball league meeting tonight at the C. A. C. is of vast importance since teams to have places in the loop this winter are expected to be selected. . . . There will be some new blood in the organization, and the climax of the season will be the tournament to be held in the spring. . . . It won't be so late this year as last!!!!

THREE OF SCIOTO TOWNSHIP STARS LOST BY HOGAN

Replacements for All-County

Harold Gulick, Bobby Trego and Ike Neal, three of the outstanding cagers in the county last year, are needed by Coach Paul Hogan at Scioto Township before his varsity crew becomes a contender for the Pickaway County gonfalon. Gulick, Trego and Neal have all graduated and their shoes will be hard to fill.

Returning to form the nucleus for the Commercial Point boys will be Beers, W. Beavers and Bauhan. Other squad members will be Beatty, Timmons, Dean, Dennis, Schooley, E. Beavers and Wilbarger, the latter a transfer from Muhlenberg.

The season will be started Friday, November 10, with Laurelville traveling to Scioto. The remainder of the schedule follows: November 17, at Ashville; November 21, Washington; December 1, at Jackson; December 8, Perry; December 15, at Darby; December 22, at Monroe; January 6, Grove City; January 12, Deer Creek; January 16, at Hamilton Township; January 19, at Walnut; January 26, at New Holland; February 2, Pickaway; February 9, open; February 16, Salter Creek.

Four replacements are needed on the girls' team, two girls graduating and the Johnson sisters, stars of last year's team, removing to Darby Township where they will perform this winter.

ATHOL, Mass.—A wager made by two young men whether a coasting automobile could hurtle the "Main Street curbing" cost an innocent party $100. The machine jumped the curbing and crashed into a store, smashing the two plate glass windows.

About This And That In Many Sports

Rae Bales, who returned recently after a sojourn in the East, says that Clemson, from the South, will have one of the best teams in the country next year. . . . He saw Clemson take the Navy, and in convincing fashion. . . . "The second team is as good as the first," Bales said, and all of the varsity boys are back for another year. . . . Leonard Simonetti, 215-pound New Philadelphia, O., fullback and a star basketball player despite his girth, has enrolled at the University of Tennessee and is playing center on the first freshman team. . . . Simonetti was at Marshall College last year, but left there for some reason. . . . New Philadelphia has another boy for whom Ohio colleges, and probably some out of the state, will probable battle. . . . He is another Italian lad, Jack Castiglione, who is playing left halfback for the fourth consecutive year. . . . The team on which he plays has lost two games in the last three years and last week defeated Bellaire on the latter's field, 6-2, before 7,000 persons. . . . Do you know that Ohio State University is the only school in Ohio that outdraws Massillon high school?—The Tigers of the Stark County school have now drawn more than 100,000 through the gate so far this year, and the Canton McKinley game has not yet been played. . . . Many Circlevillians, maybe not so many since the Illinois debacle, will go to Ann Arbor Saturday to see the Wolverines and Minnesota tangle. . . . Tiger gridders will be asked to name an honorary captain at the close of the season Friday in Hillsboro. . . . Wouldn't it be nice if our Red and Black boys could be equipped like the lads of the other schools in the SCOT? . . . It is rather disheartening to see opponents trot on the field dressed in wind breakers and other equipment of which our boys have none. . . . Ashville high school's cagers appear again to be the cream of the county despite the loss of Walden, Hoover and Nance. . . . Junior Gregg and Barney Reese are back, and both boys are good enough for any high school team hereabouts. . . . Amanda will be strong again, the state tourney crew having many veterans back. . . . A new coach will be on the scene this year. . . . One of the best schools in the county to expand its athletic plant will be Walnut. . . . The Walnut building, which houses the largest student body of any school in the county, also contains the smallest gymnasium now that Atlanta has built. . . . A WHISPERED HUNCH. Iowa over Notre Dame. . . . A grid game expected to draw local attention Saturday is that between Ohio University and Miami at Athens. . . . The basketball league meeting tonight at the C. A. C. is of vast importance since teams to have places in the loop this winter are expected to be selected. . . . There will be some new blood in the organization, and the climax of the season will be the tournament to be held in the spring. . . . It won't be so late this year as last!*

THREE OF SCIOTO TOWNSHIP STARS LOST BY HOGAN

Replacements for All-County

Harold Gulick, Bobby Trego and Ike Neal, three of the outstanding cagers in the county last year, are needed by Coach Paul Hogan at Scioto Township before his varsity crew becomes a contender for the Pickaway County gonfalon. Gulick, Trego and Neal have all graduated and their shoes will be hard to fill.

Returning to form the nucleus for the Commercial Point boys will be Beers, W. Beavers and Bauhan. Other squad members will be Beatty, Timmons, Dean, Dennis, Schooley, E. Beavers and Wilbarger, the latter a transfer from Muhlenberg.

The season will be started Friday, November 10, with Laurelvile traveling to Scioto. The remainder of the schedule follows: November 17, at Ashville; November 21, Washington; December 1, at Jackson; December 8, Perry; December 15, at Darby; December 22, at Monroe; January 6, Grove City; January 12, Deer Creek; January 19, at Walnut; January 26, at New Holland; February 2, Pickaway; February 9, open; February 16, Salt Creek.

Four replacements are needed on the girls' team, two girls graduating and the Johnson sisters, stars of last year's team, removing to Darby Township where they will perform this winter.

CITY, COUNTY JOIN IN ROUT OF BIGELOW AMENDMENTS, OTHER OHIO ISSUES

DISTRICT GOES NEARLY 6 TO 1 AGAINST BILLS

Election Board Officials Say Parade Of "Nos" Sets Record

Circleville and Pickaway County lined up definitely against the Bigelow amendments and both of the other state issues Tuesday when they stretched a parade of "Nos" across the face of almost every ballot that contained the state questions.

The rout was "tremendous," to quote persons who fought the Bigelow issues from the start to the finish.

The pension angle of the Bigelow question went down to a 2,308-420 defeat in the county; the referendum issues were thumped by a 2,156-345 margin.

Along with the Bigelow questions went the other state issues, one asking that a state board of education be legalized and the other a plea for a referendum on the Bricker administration's civil service "ripper" bill.

The county turned thumbs down on the education vote appeal by a tally of 1,632 to 869 and the civil service referendum was trounced 1,556 to 680.

Election board officials said they never had seen so many "Nos" marked on ballots. Many persons who wanted to vote against the Bigelow questions were afraid they might make a mistake so they voted against all the controversial questions involved.

Not a precinct in Circleville or in Pickaway County voted in

Cady Elected!

WILLIAM B. CADY, Circleville's chief executive for the last two years, was returned to office Tuesday when the city cast a record off-year vote. Mayor Cady defeated Benton T. Hedges, Republican justice of the peace, three times Circleville mayor, the only Republican to ever have this distinction. Cady took an early lead when the northend precincts started to come in, and increased it by showing strength in nearly all precincts.

favor of the Bigelow amendments or the other state issues.

The result of the ballot was a feather in the cap of the organizations waging a campaign against the bills. The first Bigelow question would have paid $50 monthly to each person in Ohio over 60 and $80 to married couples providing they were not gainfully employed. The second would have reduced the number of signers needed on an initiatory petition to 100,000 from any part of the state; all from one county if need be.

The actions were termed as the "most vicious" to ever grace an Ohio ballot.

ASHVILLE PUTS HINES IN OFFICE

Fred J. Hines was elected mayor of Ashville in Tuesday's election defeating J. S. Hoover by a vote of 335 to 254. E. E. Fraunfelder, present mayor, was not a candidate for reelection.

The votes for other candidates were: clerk, Richard Wills, 525; treasurer, Ben Morrison, 337, and Clara Creager, 224; marshal, John Baker, 32, Robert Walden, 297, and Reuben Weber, 256; council, T. R. Acord, 321, S. C. Allison, 373, Frank Conrad, 431, Clyde Hoover, 394, C. B. Morrison, 404, A. E. Petty, 404, E. L. Runkle, 158, Harold Silbaugh, 312; board of public affairs, Clarence Berry, 169, Taylor Brintlinger, 293, Grover Cline, 319, Russell Hoover, 219 and O. W. Wills, 375. In Harrison Township Russell Reid was elected trustee and James Hoover, clerk.

NEW HOLLAND RENAMES STEBELTON ITS MAYOR

C. V. Stebelton, mayor of New Holland was reelected in Tuesday's election defeating Hugh Stevenson in the only contest in the village.

Others elected were May Kibler, clerk; Clark Bryant, treasurer; Thomas Doyle, marshal and C. D. Davy, D. H. Roth, Jesse Barns, O. C. Dennis, Mert Tootie and Oscar Flack, members of council.

LEOTA SMITH SUES

Mrs. Leota M. Smith, Logan Street, filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court Tuesday against Raymond Smith charging neglect of duty and cruelty. They were married November 8, 1938 in Circleville, the petition says. They have no children. Mrs. Smith asks her maiden name of Reid be restored.

Ballot On Government Change Proves Puzzle

One of the most confusing issues for Circleville voters was the ballot on the charter form of government.

The issue was defeated by a vote of 1,464 to 937. When voting on the issue Circleville folk voted also on a commission of 15 men to frame the charter. These men, had the issue passed, would have framed a charter for submission to voters at a later election.

Precinct workers said the count of votes on the 15 men for the commission slowed down their work and caused many returns to arrive late at the board of elections. Although all men would have been automatically elected if the issue had passed, many voters put their marks in front of only a portion of the men on the list. This necessitated a lengthy count.

The votes cast for the various men listed for members of the commission were: A. W. Goeller 682, Ben Gordon 733, Harry W. Heffner 618, Clarence Helvering 670, Paul Johnson 671, William Justus 584, E. W. Lutz 642, Frank Lynch 757, Mack Parrett, Jr., 708, W. L. Stambaugh 582, W. E. Wallace 694, Clarence Wolf 721, R. L. Brehmer 713, C. G. Chalfin 638 and Ray W. Davis 728.

C. C. KREIDER BECOMES NEW TARLTON MAYOR

C. C. Kreider is the new mayor of Tarlton succeeding H. C. Barr who was not a candidate for reelection. There were no contests in the village election.

CITY, COUNTY JOIN IN ROUT OF BIGELOW AMENDMENTS, OTHER OHIO ISSUES

DISTRICT GOES
NEARLY 6 TO 1
AGAINST BILLSElection Board Officials
Say Parade Of "Nos"
Sets Record

Circleville and Pickaway County lined up definitely against the Bigelow amendments and both of the other state issues Tuesday when they stretched a parade of "Nos" across the face of almost every ballot that contained the state questions.

The rout was "tremendous," to quote persons who fought the Bigelow issues from the start to the finish.

The pension angle of the Bigelow question went down to a 2,308-420 defeat in the county; the referendum issues was thumped by a 2,156-345 margin.

Along with the Bigelow questions went the other state issues, one asking that a state board of education be legalized and the other a plea for a referendum on the Bricker administration's civil service "ripper" bill.

The county turned thumbs down on the education vote appeal by a tally of 1,632 to 869 and the civil service referendum was trounced 1,556 to 690.

Election board officials said they never had seen so many "Nos" marked on ballots. Many persons who wanted to vote against the Bigelow questions were afraid they might make a mistake so they voted against all the controversial questions involved.

Not a precinct in Circleville or in Pickaway County voted in

Cady Elected!

WILLIAM B. CADY, Circleville's chief executive for the last two years, was returned to office Tuesday when the city cast a record off-year vote. Mayor Cady defeated Benton T. Hedges, Republican justice of the peace, three times Circleville mayor, the only Republican to ever have this distinction. Cady took an early lead when the northend precincts started to come in, and increased it by showing strength in nearly all precincts.

favor of the Bigelow amendments or the other state issues.

The result of the ballot was a feather in the cap of the organizations waging a campaign against the bills. The first Bigelow question would have paid $50 monthly to each person in Ohio over 60 and $80 to married couples providing they were not gainfully employed. The second would have reduced the number of signers needed on an initiative petition to 100,000 from any part of the state; all from one county if need be.

The actions were termed as the "most vicious" to ever grace an Ohio ballot.

ASHVILLE PUTS
HINES IN OFFICE

Fred J. Hines was elected mayor of Ashville in Tuesday's election defeating J. S. Hoover by a vote of 335 to 254. E. E. Fraunfelder, present mayor, was not a candidate for reelection.

The votes for other candidates were: clerk, Richard Wills, 525; treasurer, Ben Morrison, 337, and Clara Creager, 224; marshal, John Baker, 32, Robert Walden, 297, and Reuben Weber, 256; council, T. R. Acord, 321, S. C. Allison, 373, Frank Conrad, 431, Clyde Hoover, 394, C. B. Morrison, 404, A. E. Petty, 404, E. L. Runkle, 158, Harold Silbaugh, 312; board of public affairs, Clarence Berry, 169, Taylor Brintlinger, 293, Grover Cline, 319, Russell Hoover, 219 and O. W. Wills, 375. In Harrison Township Russell Reid was elected trustee and James Hoover, clerk.

NEW HOLLAND RENAMES
STEBELTON ITS MAYOR

C. V. Stebelton, mayor of New Holland was reelected in Tuesday's election defeating Hugh Stevenson in the only contest in the village.

Others elected were May Kibler, clerk; Clark Bryant, treasurer; Thomas Doyle, marshal and C. D. Davy, D. H. Roth, Jesse Barnes, O. C. Dennis, Mert Tootle and Oscar Flack, members of council.

LEOTA SMITH SUES

Mrs. Leota M. Smith, Logan Street, filed suit for divorce in Common Pleas Court Tuesday against Raymond Smith charging neglect of duty and cruelty. They were married November 8, 1938 in Circleville, the petition says. They have no children. Mrs. Smith asks her maiden name of Reid be restored.

Ballot On Government
Change Proves Puzzle

One of the most confusing issues for Circleville voters was the ballot on the charter form of government.

The issue was defeated by a vote of 1,464 to 937. When voting on the issue Circleville folk voted also on a commission of 15 men to frame the charter. These men, had the issue passed, would have framed a charter for submission to voters at a later election.

Precinct workers said the count of votes on the 15 men for the commission slowed down their work and caused many returns to arrive late at the board of elections. Although all men would have been automatically elected if the issue had passed, many voters put their marks in front of only a portion of the men on the list. This necessitated a lengthy count.

The votes cast for the various men listed for members of the commission were: A. W. Goeller 682, Ben Gordon 733, Harry W. Heffner 618, Clarence Helvering 670, Paul Johnson 671, William Justus 584, E. W. Lutz 642, Frank Lynch 757, Mack Parrett, Jr., 708, W. L. Stambaugh 582, W. E. Wallace 694, Clarence Wolf 721, R. L. Brehmer 713, C. G. Chalfin 638 and Ray W. Davis 728.
